

Transfers head teachers' new demands

The 1977-78 Murray Teachers Association contract proposal carries particular emphasis on transfer policy and the work day, and requests straight binding arbitration of grievances.

George Richmond, chairman of the MTA negotiating team, president Bob Kroetch, and fellow architects of the teacher proposal told a press gathering Monday they are particularly concerned with the transfer policy in lieu of the district's declining enrollment.

"There have been some periphery teacher changes that are a secondary affect of Frederiksen School being converted," Richmond said. "We are asking (via the contract proposal) that any teachers being considered for a transfer receive written notice and that they have full opportunity to respond." Kroetch said that seven teachers at Fallon, a school that will be affected by the conversion of Frederiksen to seventh and eighth grades, are being transferred.

"But, basically," continued Richmond, "the document for 1977-78 is based on this year's, only it's been tightened and expanded."

Jerry Joyce, who put the contract together along with Richmond, Marilyn Mackey and Paul Vinella, said teachers had at least four opportunities to provide input. "We also put out a survey to teachers, compiled it and had individual meetings at schools."

Said Vinella, "When we got a question (from teachers) we looked at other declining enrollment districts to see what they did in their contracts. We asked them, "Is this really working?"

Richmond said the grievance policy proposed "is no different in steps (than the present), except at the third step at which point we want full binding arbitration."

The MTA triumvirate said district policies are added to the contract proposal. This was done, Richmond said, so that both parties could see where they stand with relation to the other ... and so the administration will know at what point the MTA wants their application of policy utilized.

The work day for teachers at the primary level is now 240 minutes and 280 minutes at the 4-6 level. State minimums are 230 and 240, respectively.

MTA is asking for cost of living (from March to March) and a 5 per cent increase in salary. Details of the salary request plus MTA requests for organizational security, fringe benefits, pay and sick leave notification, association release time, class size, evaluation procedure, association rights, and leaves are also contained in the 47-page contract proposal.

The Murray school board is expected to make a counter proposal at their meeting of Monday, May 2.

Richmond is hopeful that preliminary negotiations can begin by Monday, May 9.

The judo instructors from Yotsukaido — Livermore's second sister city — toured the Ising Ranch on Mines Road. (Times photo by Neil Heilpern)

Half a delegation here

LIVERMORE — An accident which closed Tokyo airport yesterday prevented a four member Yotsukaido delegation from arriving here in time for official sister city ceremonies in council chambers last night.

The five member unofficial delegation of judo instructors, who left the day before, took in the sights of Livermore Monday and noticed many differences between the two sister cities.

Yotsukaido Mayor Teiichi Saito and three other town officials had been scheduled to exchange sister city proclamations with the city council last night, but an accident of a Philippines Airlines plane closed the airport and left them stranded for 24 hours.

Sam Cohen, president of the local Yotsukaido Sister City Organization, told The Times he expects Saito's group to arrive today. He is making arrangements for an exchange of the documents during a public reception 8 p.m. at the Ising Ranch on Mines Road.

Cohen said Mayor Helen Tirsell was unavailable for tonight's function and Vice Mayor Marshall Kamena will officiate instead.

The reception will include a judo demonstration by the visitors and students of the Yoshin Jitsu Kai School in Livermore. The five visiting judo instructors are from Yotsukaido's Meikyo - kan Judo School.

Following a luncheon at the Red Baron restaurant yesterday, the Japanese judo experts took a ride to the Ising Ranch and were amazed at the expanse of land in the Valley.

Ridge development clears first major hurdle — cautiously

Alameda County Bureau

HAYWARD — Carl Nipper won a cautious and heavily qualified first round victory from county planning commissioners yesterday in his effort to build a deluxe subdivision atop the Pleasanton Ridge.

Commissioners ended three and one-half hours of debate by accepting his preliminary plans with a lopsided 6-1 vote, but said they would welcome an appeal to the county board of supervisors.

At least one of Nipper's most vociferous opponents, Margaret Tracy of Preserve Area Ridgeland Committee (PARC), said her group would make the appeal.

Nipper's plans call for 95-home estate like homes on 440 acres overlooking Sunol and Pleasanton. The preliminary land use and development plan presented yesterday for his "Rancho Sunol Estates" means the developer is proceeding along lines generally acceptable to planning commissioners. He still must submit a final plan and garner county supervisors' approval.

Yesterday's vote could have gone either way.

Veteran commissioner William Carpenter, generally among the commission's growth oriented majority, said Nipper's unique "package sewer treatment plant" is a matter of county policy that should be decided by county supervisors, not the advisory commission.

The plan, he said, will have a "far reaching" impact on future suburban growth.

Paul Heck

He was backed by commissioner Paul Bernhardt, who said, "either way the motion is made, we can have the board of supervisors see it for policy."

The lone dissent came from freshman commissioner Barbara Shockley. She told fellow commissioners the matter of policy should be settled before any specific plan is approved.

While the commission's action accepts Nipper's proposal "in principle," and in affect washes away objections by the county's Local Agency Formation Commission and the state Water Quality Control Board, the would-be developer must bring in more data on the nitrite and salt residue from his proposed package plant.

He also must deliver something more concrete in his request for a "sewer maintenance district" with the county, as well as sample contractual and financial agreements he proposes.

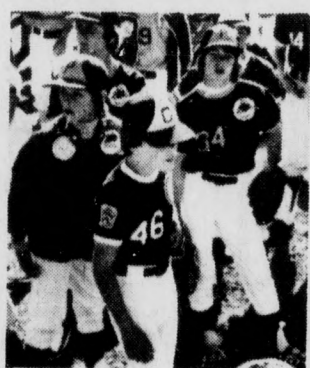

Nipper, as usual, sat quietly in the audience while partner Paul Heck orchestrated the lengthy delivery.

The thrust of their attack came from Aqueonics, Inc. president Neil Neilson, whose novel sewage treatment plant lies at the heart of the proposal.

The Valley Performing Arts Company will conduct its first-ever membership meeting Wednesday, 8:30 p.m., the Cultural Arts Center on Black Avenue in Pleasanton.

All Valley residents supportive of the arts are invited to attend. Future plans of The Company and its first production of "Carnival" will be discussed during the brief business meeting. Gil Maines is VPAC president.

Parks talk big

East Bay Regional Park District's biggest projects for the coming year will be discussed at today's bimonthly meeting at BART headquarters, 800 Madison St., Oakland.

EBRPD general manager Richard Trudeau, attorney Jerry Kent and planner Lew Crutcher will present the elected park district board with their ideas for the 1977-78 fiscal year. The report comes in the middle of an all-afternoon meeting which begins at 2 p.m.

Other topics to be discussed include award of contracts for fish and for refuse collection; approval of a memorandum of understanding with the police association; approval of employee salaries and group benefits; reports from the Park Advisory Committee; and approval of the district's disaster plan.

Chowchilla hearing off

OAKLAND AP — A pretrial hearing on evidence against three young men accused of last July's kidnap of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver has been postponed until April 26.

The hearing originally was scheduled for Tuesday.

Lab protest

Stop nuclear weapon work

SACRAMENTO — Citizens protesting nuclear weapons design work at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory asked the state Assembly sub-committee on education to sever Lab ties with the University of California.

The sub-committee heard the testimony last week while reviewing UC's budget, an annual process.

Steve Ladd, speaking on behalf of the UC Nuclear Weapons Conversion Project, urged legislators to force the Lawrence Lab facility to phase out nuclear weapons work in favor of alternative projects that are "far more pressing."

Despite the recent signing of a five-year contract between the federal government and UC to operate the Livermore and Los Alamos, New Mexico, laboratories, Ladd said it was still important that the question was being addressed.

UC Regents approved the new contracts "without any substantial public participation," he charged, even though a delay was requested to allow for public hearings. "We saw no reason to rush ahead on so crucial a matter since the contracts weren't set to expire until September 30 of this year."

Ladd claimed it is neither "morally or academically appropriate" for UC to develop nuclear warheads in the name of higher education, "when we already have over 30,000, which is far more than the Soviets possess." The university allows LLL to operate autonomously without any "humanizing" impact, he said.

The citizens group delivered a letter to UC President David Saxon last week, asking him to initiate three actions:

- Appoint a committee with representatives from a wide spectrum of views to publicly review the UC - Labs relationship. This would expand on Saxon's earlier commitment to appoint an administrative committee to examine the issue.

- Spend part of the $3.6 million UC receives reportedly receives as an administrative fee for operating the Labs to establish a program of statewide public discussion on U.S. nuclear weapons policy.

- Begin developing contingency plans to convert the Lawrence and Los Alamos Labs to alternative research projects, such as new or improved sources of energy.

Members of the Conversion Project would picket the Lawrence Lab from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 30 to protest continued nuclear design work, Ladd announced.

Tufold

Parents, staff save their pet

LIVERMORE — Granada High School's controversial Tufold scheduling system appears rescued from extinction, thanks to tireless effort from parent and staff enthusiasts of the futuristic system.

Although no one denies problems have cropped up because of the flexible scheduling, there appear to be more supporters than detractors of Tufold (Time Utilization For Optimum Learning Development) system, according to a report to be delivered at tonight's public school board meeting by principal Jack Snodgrass.

Last fall when Snodgrass replaced long-time principal Jack Lee at Granada, there was talk of "re-viewing" Tufold with an eye to replacing it with a system more to the liking of parents and staff who prefer a more rigid schedule.

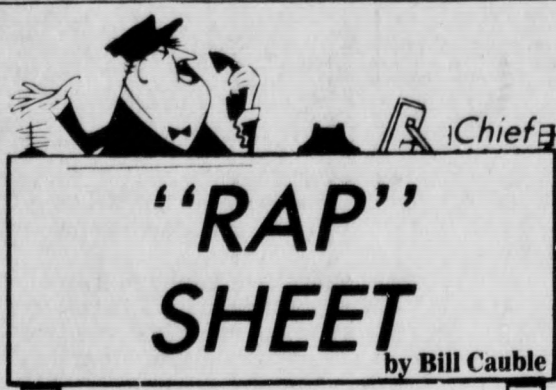

The threat of change mobilized a large group of parents, some of them influential in local politics, who made an in-depth study of Tufold. Their conclusions, published last month in a position paper, contradicted many of the charges that have been leveled at Granada's program over the years.

Tonight's report to be delivered by principal Snodgrass says the School - Within - a - School (SWS), attempted last year to offer a rigid schedule to some students, met with failure for several reasons and was dropped this year. "Though the school enjoyed many successes," says the report, "the task of dealing

Young girl critical after accident

LIVERMORE — A 14-year-old girl, riding on the hood of a car her brother had just finished repairing Sunday afternoon, slipped off the vehicle and sustained head injuries leaving her in critical condition.

Lisa Maria Martinez of Leahy Way is reported in critical condition at Valley Memorial Hospital.

According to police, 16-year-old Jose Luis Martinez had completed repairing his mother's car about 4:15 p.m. Sunday. His sister, Lisa, jumped on the hood and rode along until the car turned right from Leahy onto Jensen Avenue. Police said the girl apparently slipped off and struck the ground.

Jose Martinez was cited for allowing a person to unlawfully ride on his car.

Youths arrest suspected burglar

LIVERMORE — Two persons lying in wait for a burglar's return visit arrested a 15-year-old Granada High School student attempting to break into the Elm Street residence Saturday, police report.

Two young brothers told officers that they expected a burglar, who had robbed $23 from their home last week, to return and try his act again. When their telephone rang for more than five minutes late Friday, they knew they had their man.

About five minutes later, they heard sounds like someone was attempting to climb the outside of their two-story home, and went upstairs to investigate. There, they found a juvenile apparently trying to force open the balcony door.

Under police questioning, the youth admitted he had taken money from the home a few days earlier, and was again attempting to gain entry when apprehended.

The suspect was booked on suspicion of attempted burglary.

Whistle Stop Antiques store burglarized

SUNOL — Burglars broke into the Whistle Stop Antiques store less than an hour after it had closed Sunday and took several antique items, sheriff's deputies report.

Owner Audrey Pimentel told deputies she locked the store at about 6 p.m., then returned at 7:20 p.m. to discover the burglary.

Officers said burglars pried boards off a window and broke the glass to enter. A German wall clock valued at $250 and other unnamed items were listed as missing. Deputies lifted at least nine fingerprints from the scene. Some missing items were located in a nearby field. There are no suspects.

Utilities at shopping center switched off

PLEASANTON — Vandals disconnected telephone and power lines to at least three businesses at the Alpha Beta shopping center on Hopyard Road Sunday afternoon, police report.

The blackout affected Hopyard Liquors, One Hour Martinizing and the Valley Pool Center. There are no suspects.

Jewelry taken from Glenbrook Court residence

PLEASANTON — An estimated $600 in jewelry was taken from a Glenbrook Court home late Friday, police report.

Burglars entered an unlocked patio door and searched the home's master bedroom only, police said. Owner Vicki Lynn White reported that several pieces of assorted jewelry were taken. There are no suspects.

Compromise sought

PLEASANTON — The planning staff will huddle with the owner of the old Reynold C. Johnson Volkswagen offices and try to work out a compromise which will fill up office space there without violating the integrity of the regional office district.

The offices, now owned by Vorelco, the real estate arm of Volkswagen of America, were built by predecessor Reynold C. Johnson in a regional office zone which permits offices no smaller than 5,000 square feet.

Volkswagen moved its operations out of Pleasanton and it's been difficult to find tenants who need 5,000 square feet or more, according to Vorelco agent Jim Stratton. Some 30 to 50 per cent of the building is vacant and nearly all of the 25 inquiries he is getting are for offices ranging from 150 to 3,000 square feet.

Stratton said a rezoning is "inappropriate" and a variance is illegal in the city, though not in other California communities. Opposition was expressed by the Chamber of Commerce, which noted that there already are vacant offices in downtown Pleasanton and in neighborhood shopping centers.

Stratton said that many of his inquiries are interested in being close to a freeway and if they don't sign up with Vorelco, they will be lost to Dublin. He offered to put the names of all inquiring parties on a list available to all local brokers who could see for themselves whether the parties would sign up in downtown Pleasanton instead.

Commissioners said that isn't necessary; they instructed the staff to work out a compromise on square footage for the office.

By any other name, it's ostentatious

PLEASANTON — They're getting too physical at planning commission meetings, according to Planning Commissioner Bill Jamieson.

Jamieson last week called for an end to the formal phrase "your honorable body", used by staff when it addresses the planning commission.

"It's ostentatious," Jamieson told The Times yesterday. "We ought to be called 'planning commissioners.' That's what we are. I feel like an 89 year old judge when the staff calls us 'your honorable body'."

Jamieson said the staff didn't commit itself one way or another when he brought up the criticism at the end of the planning commission meeting last week, but there's always the possibility they spell it "bawdy", something that could throw a new light on the semantics of the situation. # How they view postal plan

Ready for a 28-cent stamp? No Saturday mail delivery?

With the climbing U.S. Postal Service deficit, officials are trying not to flinch as they talk about those possibilities, and others. The Commission on Postal Services reported yesterday to Congress that the cost of delivering mail will go up rapidly no matter what the Postal Service does.

Local postmasters have been keeping up with the latest Postal Service developments and have their own ideas about the mounting cost of mail delivery.

David Eldridge, Livermore postmaster, notes the first question should be "whether the Postal Service should be making money or whether we're here to serve the public."

Currently subsidized to the tune of $1.6 billion a year in tax money, the Postal Service could receive substantially higher subsidies if Congress goes for the "public service" concept.

Neither Eldridge nor Mark Foster, postmaster for Pleasanton and Dublin, is opposed to a modest increase in the price of a stamp.

"Of the 17 industrialized nations," Foster says, "only Canada has cheaper postal service, dollar for dollar. Taking into account lower incomes in most countries, Americans probably pay less to mail a letter than anyone else." Foster doesn't hear many postal patrons complaining about the price of stamps. "Only when they're mad about something."

According to Eldridge, "The post office has really held the line on costs for a long, long time." Many publications, such as magazines and church bulletins, are mailed for just 2 cents apiece, he notes.

Five-day-a-week delivery would not save as much as it might appear, both postmasters agree. Eldridge points out there's a no-layoffs policy written into the labor agreement, nationwide.

Foster says mail carriers spend about three hours in the post office and five on the route each day. Since they'd still have the same volume of mail to sort, jammed into five days instead of six, their time in the office would increase.

On the other hand, even a one-eighth reduction in substitutes' time (it would be substitutes who would be most affected by five-day delivery) would save the Postal Service a substantial hunk of their $21 billion budget.

Also suggested in the commission's report is making a final decision within two years on whether to include electronic mail service (geared mainly for businesses who would transmit messages by teletype into a post office and have the duplicated letters delivered along with the rest of the mail).

Creeping automation may further erode the Postal Service's revenues by making it possible for people to pay bills through their bank accounts in the future, rather than writing out a dozen separate checks and paying their bills by mail.

All those bills arriving and payments going out mean substantial income for the post office, Foster notes.

"Unless we find alternative sources of revenue, the more (of traditional postal services) we lose, the more what we keep is going to cost," he predicted.

"If all they have to deliver in the future is rural stuff and stuff nobody else wants, the price of a stamp is liable to be $2 or $3!"

Visitors from Japan

Driving up a hill on the 300-acre spread, the group was delighted by the bright golden California Poppies, and smiled enthusiastically when Cohen told them it was the state flower.

Kunio Tojima, a Tokyo policeman, hopped out of the car to capture them on film.

"This is my first experience abroad," said Sadao Sasaki, chief editor of Yotsukaido Shimin Shimbun (Translated, "Citizen Times"). "Most people in Japan are in a hurry but the people here in Livermore are more relaxed."

Sasaki ran successfully as an independent last year for one of 26 seats on the town council. Yotsukaido has a population of 47,000. He has ambitions to climb the political ladder, planning to run for mayor of his city, then as a representative to his prefecture's government (similar to state assembly), then on to the national legislature, the Diet.

and called the Livermore air "beautiful," Sasaki told of heavy traffic and dust in the Tokyo basin. Yotsukaido is a bedroom community of commuters who work in Tokyo.

Looking at the cows and open fields, the Japanese editor and politician said he was enjoying the informality and stated his preference for blue jeans and boots, even though his position requires a white shirt and tie for most occasions.

With a quick humor that recognized the combination of casualness and political ambition, he joked, "My fans will call me the future Jimmy Carter."

Also in the delegation were Mrs. Hideko Seki, restaurant owner; Shigetaka Takahashi, a town office worker; and Giichi Komazaki, electrician. Most enjoyed the dry, warm breeze and all loved the "very kind people of Livermore who have good personalities."

The group also toured

Del Valle Reservoir and were scheduled to visit the local judo school last night to prepare for tonight's judo demonstration. For more information on tonight's program, open to the public, call Sam or Edy Cohen, 443-5290.

Komandorski cost factors

PLEASANTON — The housing authority's consulting engineer will give a report on the cost difference between new construction and rehabilitation of Komandorski Village at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Kottinger Place Community Building, 240 Kottinger Ave.

The housing authority will ask Dublin residents to vote on whether to replace the current buildings which were built in World War II. Some Pleasanton residents have objected to replacement, contending refurbishing is cheaper and adequate.

The housing authority has maintained that there are subtle social differences between replacement and new construction, all falling on the side of new housing and its ability to inspire a better sense of community if designed with that in mind.

There also would be energy consumption savings with a new project, say commissioners.

The critics contend that new buildings would be a waste of federal tax dollars. They point to refurbishing in Vallejo as a successful example where the public is buying converted World War II housing on the private market.

Other agenda items tomorrow include a proposal to house students and single persons at Komandorski Village, plans to repair stoves there, and a report on sewer connections for new Komandorski housing.

Valley Christian set to lease school

DUBLIN — The Murray School District Board Monday night tentatively agreed to lease 10 classrooms and portions of the play areas at Dublin School to the Valley Christian Center starting initially this summer.

Still to be worked out are fencing across the blacktop area, walls in the portables and specific terms thereof.

The lease would run from Sept. 1 to Aug. 31, 1979. The bid by Valley Christian Center for $16,200 is for nine classrooms.

VCC wishes to place three portables on the round to house remaining students and a portable for administration offices.

They are asking to place cyclone fencing across the blacktop in order to have two basketball courts, and to have the district provide custodial and grounds maintenance.

Trustees also considered four alternatives as a result of the Donlon School needs assessment.

The administration has recommended that the most acceptable alternative not cost more than $60,000. The final decision will be based on architect Akol's review of the alternate selected.

Alternate number one, the highest at $58,200, calls for modernfold walls enclosing the center of pods and entrance ways, dividing the four corners and enclosing a 13 by 17 foot space.

A second alternate, estimated $48,965, would utilize both modernfold walls and accordion walls.

In other business, the board acted to request the board of supervisors to sell the remaining unsold $680,000 (principal amount) of 1972 Murray District bonds.

A January, 1972 election authorized the sale of $2 million in bonds.

Falcons are lighted

Amador Valley Joint High School District maintenance personnel and heavy construction equipment people raised light standards into place at Foothill High School Friday morning, culminating the first of two major steps in completing field facilities at the school. Lighting ceremonies are planned later this month. The six standards, when operable, will give the district its third lighted field. The lights and bleachers are a project of the Foothill High School Boosters and represent many hours of efforts to expand the list of activities for students and parents of the Foothill community. The Falcon football teams will be the initial benefactors of the lights when they use the field next fall. (Times photo)

People want Tufold

with these troubled students, who on the whole had low self-esteem and marginal school motivation, became very fatiguing on the staff. Some teachers were assigned to teaching in that program without the commitment necessary to keep the school flourishing. Continued staffing of the school was a pending problem.

"Though the 'school' was conceived and designed with certain students in mind, some members of the school board and community insisted the special schedule be expanded to cover the entire freshman curriculum. Realizing we could not support both programs, and SWS was enervating, SWS was dropped and we offered all parents of incoming freshmen students the choice of TUFOLD or a fixed block schedule."

The report adds that discipline "was taking an abnormal amount of time from learning and a poor environment was created" because most SWS students had behavior problems.

Snodgrass learned some departments at Granada, such as science, music, food services and English, make good use of their option to schedule longer or shorter classes as their subject matter demands.

Other departments, notes the report, make little use of the option.

"A few students take advantage of the opportunity to take eight or more classes. The vast majority do not."

Most parents, staff and students appear satisfied with Tufold and students do well in comparison with other high-school students in Liver-more and elsewhere.

There has been "very little support" for a change from Tufold to the suggested Stanford system, Snodgrass concludes.

History needs break, waive $580 in fees

DUBLIN — The Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) request for a waiver of fees amounting to $582.80 by the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) will be considered this evening by VCSD directors at their general office at 7:30 p.m.

Paul Ryan, VCSD general manager, submitted the DHPA request to VCSD directors during their last regular meeting April 5. According to Ryan, the VCSD board of directors expressed concern about the recommendation. They decided to continue the matter to the April 19 session.

The fees are for plan checking, inspection for water and sewer mains and for fire.

They relate to the DHPA project known as the Heritage Center on Donlon Way in Dublin.

The final decision on the waiver was not made by VCSD directors pending attendance of a DHPA representative at a VCSD directors meeting.

Judy Earl, DHPA president, was unable to attend the April 5 meeting but plans to be present this evening.

The Heritage Center involves a four-year master plan. New construction, restoration, displays, recreation areas and educational programs are included in the plan.

Other considerations and discussions at this evenings meeting include a presentation by representatives of Alameda County Planning Department regarding Environmental Management Program, consideration of proposed agreement for final revenue program for sewage treatment plant Stage III expansion and a discussion of proposed amendments to LAVWMA joint powers agreement.

SRV plan headed for supervisors

Leshner News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Adoption of the San Ramon Valley general plan will be considered by the Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

The San Ramon plan, an amendment to the Contra Costa County general plan, stresses a rural lifestyle in the valley. Several San Ramon residents, including Realtors, developers, teachers, homeowners and open-space advocates, spent more than two years developing it.

Opposition has been directed largely at "country estate" land use created especially for the San Ramon plan. Parcels in this zoning must be at least one acre but it allows owners to keep horses — something not permitted in other one-acre land zones.

The board meets at 651 Pine St. at 9 a.m.

Alamo pair try another stand

Leshner News Bureau
MARTINEZ — An Alamo couple, unsuccessful in their appeals to the Board of Supervisors last month, are going to court to stop a 19-acre subdivision next to their farm.

Randi and Dwayne Dalton, 2196 Miranda Ave., have filed a complaint in Superior Court seeking to halt the 29-unit subdivision known as "Mission Del Alamo," next to Miranda Avenue and Livorna road.

The Dalton's prime charge in the complaint is that county officials did not require an environmental impact report on the project.

But the couple also claims that their small farm is one of the last ones operating in the area and that its potential agricultural use will be "irreversibly destroyed" by the development.

Those concerns apparently did not move the Board of Supervisors in March, when it denied the Dalton's appeal of the Planning Commission's approval of the project.

Among the negative effects the Daltons claim the project will cause are a loss of open space; increased air pollution and loss of watershed areas; increased runoff and erosion.

In its conditions for approval, the Planning Commission required a dedication of open space from the developers and some improvements to Miranda Avenue to accommodate increased traffic.

The Daltons also say the housing will be beyond their financial means and therefore would "threaten to deprive them and substantial numbers of persons similarly situated of the ability to find adequate housing within their means."

Named as defendant in the complaint is Contra Costa County, with the Lynn Construction Co. and the Miranda Land Co. — coordinators of the project — as the real parties in interest.

THE FUTURE IS YOURS

You dig in the backyard flower bed and find a discarded plastic clown, an artifact of reckless three year old days, of clownish moments when you and he were free to laugh at little nothings that blew in on the breeze. But that boy's grown up now, and may not remember those particular moments, because although you and he shared them, you laughed as his mother, and he laughed as the bubbly three year old who laughed because every moment was new.

And you sit and hope that boy will retain his wonderful laugh, that devil-may-care joy, and that it will last him, and matter to him that you and he one day were here in this place sharing moments that could never happen with someone else.

Motherhood. At times you thought the world was marching by while you were standing still. Everyone else seemed to be doing something important, making money, going places. You just stayed home and were always there when everyone came home from wherever they went, a million places. They always came back to you.

You were happy when they won the race, you were thrilled when they got the part in the play, you suffered with them when they lost something important to them. You were always there, caring. That was your profession. You cared.

And the kids went on with growing up, becoming someone, coming home to you with all their triumphs and defeats, and bringing their dirty gym socks to be washed. Because they knew you cared.

You were their home base, and finally it was you they fought, you they pushed against to get out in the world, to prove they were not you, to prove they were themselves. And though it hurt, you knew they must be on their way. You did the best you could. You cared.

You dig up a blue plastic rabbit with one ear broken off, buried near an iris root. Artifact of Easter 1965. Once again you feel the cold dew on your arms from hiding the eggs in the early morning, smell the freshly cut grass, see the shining faces, the smiling children searching for the eggs, hear the shouts of victory when they found them, feel the thrill of pleasure in their pleasure.

And here you are sitting in the flower bed with your hands covered with garden soil. You hold a toy clown and a broken plastic rabbit, encrusted with dirt. The musty smell of damp soil fills your nostrils. It is starting to get hot, and perspiration drops are forming on your forehead. You know the job is done. And it was done the best it could be done. The kids are gone, and finally you have time for yourself.

You don't feel like digging in the garden anymore. The digging is over. It's time to go on to something else. The whole future is yours. It's time to get on with it.

He'll make house calls

New breed of healer shuns drugs

John Close is a doctor who doesn't believe in drugs. In fact, he's violently opposed to aspirins, allergy shots and "other poisonous nonsense."

The New Zealander is a chiropractor, one of a new breed of healers who have turned to their particular specialty because it is approached with logic instead of drugs.

Dr. Close, who practices in Pleasanton, has lived in the United States for the past six years. A valley resident since last year, the reed-thin chiropractor recalls his family laughing at his decision to go into the practice traditionally associated with sore backs.

"That didn't bother me, though," he says, "because I was so excited about it. Chiropractic is a healing art that makes sense to me."

Times Lifestyle

Editor: Jean McKenna

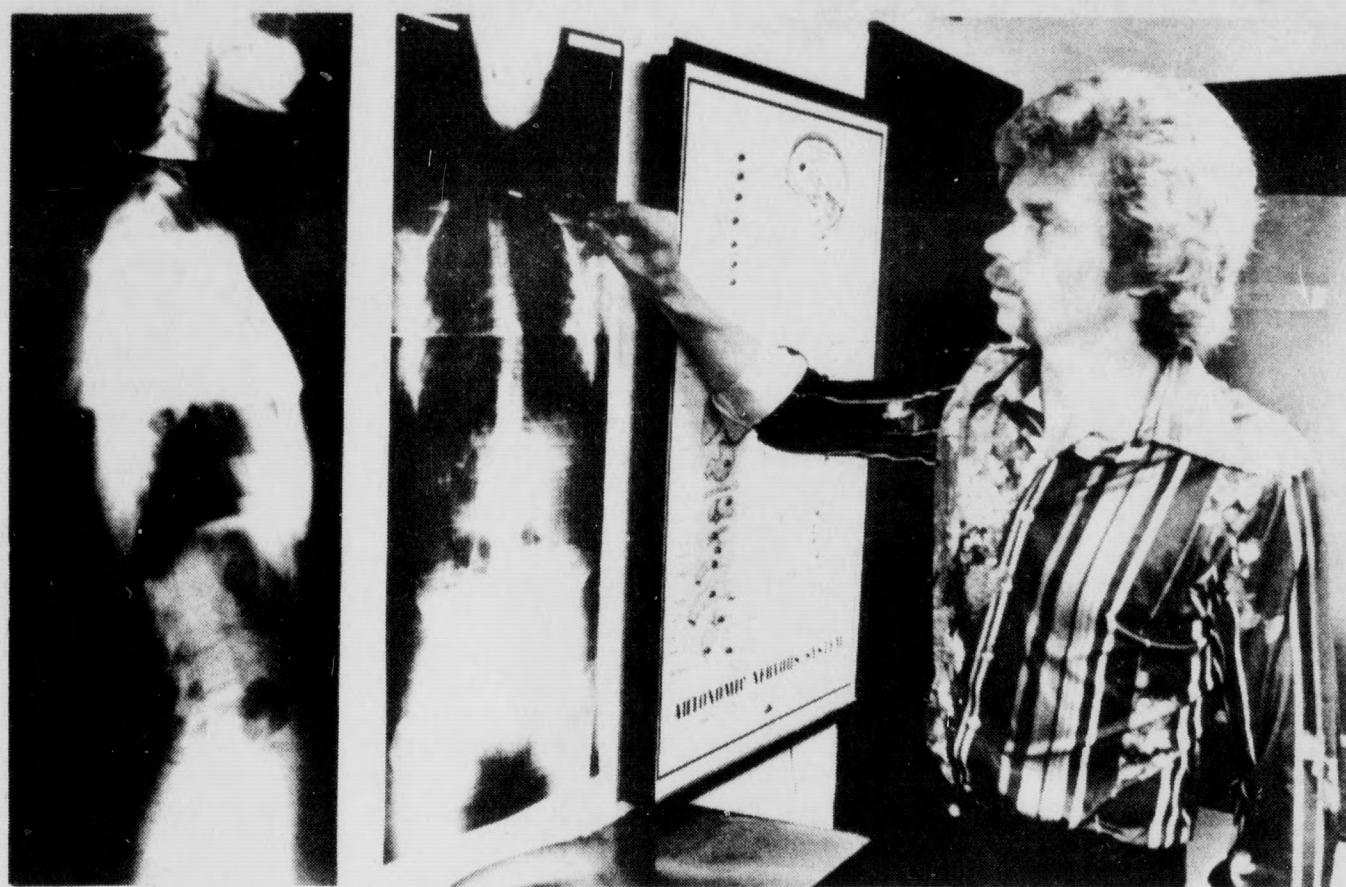

Lucy Hobgood-Brown
Arline Butterfield

Although 30 per cent of his patients do have back problems, John concedes, everything from acne to laryngitis and lumbago can be cured right in a chiropractor's office. "The general practitioner's approach is to treat a problem with a drug," declares John, "while a chiropractor believes that every function in the body is controlled by impulses in the brain."

The healing system is based on the theory that disease results from a lack of normal nerve function, requiring specific adjustment of body structures, he explains.

A graduate of Iowa's Palmer College of Chiropractic, John will be demonstrating first aid remedies for such aches and pains as headaches, sprains and high blood pressure at Anthropos' May 15 health fair, planned from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at The Barn in Livermore.

For $7.50, the public will be treated to an entire day with health experts, who will speak at workshops on such subjects as dealing with anger, re-programming your past, eating more nutritiously, giving a foot massage and reducing stress. Senior citizens and students

Chiropractors have been around a long time — but thanks to the efforts of New Zealand-born John Close, more and more people are discovering that they have several benefits over many general practitioners. Including the fact that they make house calls.

will be admitted for $5, and activities ranging from yoga to puppetry will be available to children under 12 for free.

Anxious to dispell the myth that chiropractors "are just sore back doctors," John is an enthusiastic workshop leader and club speaker. The first aid techniques he plans to present at the May 15 fair are basic, he says. "Without formal training, people can learn to at least recognize potential problems."

The chiropractor, who points out that he wouldn't hesitate to go to a general practitioner with a laceration, emphasizes that medicine treats the symptoms while his specialty treats the cause.

"It makes me sick to see kids going to a doctor for allergy shots every week," he declares. "Hay fever is usually the cause of a malfunctioning adrenal gland, where the nerve supply may not be full. It could also be the result of something in the kid's diet."

The chiropractor's avenue of approach is usually through the spinal column, John explains. "To be healthy, every one of your over 400 trillion cells must be functioning," he points out, his English accent making each statement that much more dramatic.

A physical examination with a chiropractor is an event to be hailed with zest, another interesting comparison to the general practitioner's urine tests and tonsil probing.

Dr. Close's ministrations are simple — the patient lies flat on the examination table, with one arm at a 90 degree angle. With one hand gently touching acupuncture and reflex points all over the body, and the other hand grasping the patient's extended wrist, Close is able to ascertain whether or not your pancreas is up to par or even whether you're getting enough vitamin E.

To discover more about your inner mysteries, don't miss John Close's hour-long workshop at the faire!

If you're looking for extra money, have a look around the house.

If you've owned your home for even a few years, chances are you've got a lot more borrowing power than you think you have.

How much more? Depending on your ability to repay, you may be able to obtain a Bank of America Home Equity Loan for up to 80% of the Bank's appraised value of your home, less whatever you still owe. Loans from $5,000 to $25,000 are available at an annual percentage rate of 12%. Your loan is secured by a second deed of trust on your house and you can repay the loan in equal instalments over a period of five to fifteen years. The finance charge is calculated on a simple interest basis. And there is no penalty for prepayment. You can pay off your loan at any time — and the sooner you do, the lower the total amount of interest you will pay.

Your home can provide the funds for a wide range of worthwhile purposes. You may even combine several purposes in one loan.

The accompanying chart shows typical examples of repayment schedules for a variety of Bank of America Home Equity Loan amounts and terms.

A Home Equity Loan is a serious responsibility, one you should consider carefully. So feel free to come by any convenient Bank of America branch and discuss a loan program to fit your particular needs and budget. Our people are ready to help you find out just how much borrowing power you really have.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I took a new job a month ago and my employer is one of those persons who can't talk to me without patting and touching. At least, it seems that way. He hasn't made any overt passes, nor has he asked me out, so I'm not quite sure what to think. He is attractive, but he's married and I don't want to get into any tight spot where I'm going to have to put out or be fired. Do you think I should ignore his familiarities or should I complain? — D.M.

DEAR D.M.: It's possible he isn't even aware of his habit. Try kidding him just enough to make him realize what he does. Some men do this so automatically with women that they think nothing of it. I believe that without making a scene you can let him know you'd rather he didn't touch you.

Before I go any further, however, I'd like to remind you that there are laws to protect employees and no woman has to "put out or be fired." I realize it's often painful and embarrassing to have to take these matters to a lawyer, but it's important to protect yourself and women in other jobs around the nation.

Touching can mean many things, from almost nothing to an attempt to be warm and friendly — or it can be a test to see how far a person can go. Sometimes it's insidious rather than warm. If a man pats or touches as a symbol of women's inferiority it's a subtle physical threat, a sign of power.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I were discussing insurance with our neighbors, since we both recently bought new cars. We were outraged to learn that this couple got nearly the same bill that we did from our company though the man is a hazard on the road. He's had four accidents and I'm convinced he'll eventually total his car. I've had only one minor traffic violation and my husband's never had an accident. Not only am I furious with our insurance company, but I don't think this man should be allowed to drive. — W.B.

DEAR W.B.: You certainly should ask your insurance company about this. If you can do it without naming names, you'll save yourself embarrassment and you can still get the information you wish.

Most insurance companies are quite rigid about checking into past driving records. They're also looking more closely at individual drivers habits, because it was found that smokers have almost twice as many auto accidents as nonsmokers and some companies are taking this into consideration when issuing insurance.

With insurance rates soaring, it's quite possible that in the future, companies may ask drivers to take a personality test. Studies have shown, for instance, that the bad driver suffers from a lack of identity. Dr. James T. Weston, chief medical investigator for New Mexico, feels the breakdown of the family creates a person who doesn't care about himself or others. The lack of cohesion in the home can produce persons who are angry, drink too much and may even have an unconscious wish to die. These characteristics in a driver can be lethal.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DO CLAMS EAT?"

A. CLAMS THAT LIVE BURIED IN SAND HAVE LONG SIPHONS THAT POINT UP OUT OF THE SAND AND DRAW IN WATER FILLED WITH TINY FOOD PARTICLES

ROBERTA GALLEGO SWINK, CO

Clams are a kind of shellfish that lives on the bottoms of oceans, lakes and streams in many parts of the world.

Most clams burrow in the mud or sand along seashores, using a strong, wedge-shaped foot.

Because the clam remains buried in the mud most of its life, it has developed a very unusual way of eating. It has a long, necklike organ called a siphon. This siphon is made up of two tubes and can be pushed far out of the shell.

When the tide covers the mud the clam opens its shell and pokes its long siphon up to the water.

Water is drawn into one of the tubes, bringing oxygen and tiny bits of food into the clam's body.

The water is then forced out through the other tube, carrying away waste.

When the tide is out, the clam pulls in its siphon.

Soft-shell clams are sometimes called long-neck clams because they have a siphon, or "neck" that may be several inches long.

For Tuesday, April 19, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're prone to take risks where your resources are concerned today. Because they're impulsive, those risks could be losers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Independence is a luxury you may not be able to afford today because of heavy demands by others. You must decide how much time you can sacrifice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't take on more responsibilities than you can handle today. If you assume too heavy a load, you'll be in a bind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) With some friends you'll be a trifle stingy today, while with others you'll be too generous. Know where to draw the line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You like to follow your routine, but you may get a few surprises today. Unless you keep calm, you won't be able to cope.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your preconceived notions today are a bit on the negative side. Try not to judge anything without sufficient evidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A good rule today: Keep out of pals' financial affairs and don't let them butt into yours. Either way spells trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you meet problems head-on, but today you might dodge a difficult decision by doing something erratic and out-of-character.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Mistakes are likely in your work today if you experiment with new procedures. Grit your teeth and follow accepted practices.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The feeling that people are trying to use you may occur to you today. You could respond negatively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There could be some disruptions in your household today. They'll be amplified because your mate is a little grumpy as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Failure to get people to do things today stems from two causes: Cloudy instructions and making them feel obligated to you.

South's problem is to bring in dummy's club suit. He would like to score five tricks there, but four will be enough for his needs since he is sure of three spades and two hearts. As a matter of fact, after the heart lead he can count on three heart tricks.

The simple way to play the club suit is to come to his hand with a spade at trick two and lead a club toward dummy. Then he puts up dummy's queen and if East is reasonably alert he lets the queen hold.

South comes back to his hand with another spade and leads a second club. After West plays low, South rises with dummy's king. If West had held the ace of clubs everything would be fine, but East produces the ace. Now East leads a spade to establish two spade tricks. South is in dummy for the last time and can't ever bring any more club tricks in. East has blocked the suit by ducking.

South can counter that play in advance by just leading a low club from dummy at trick two. Then when he plays the king of clubs next it doesn't matter what East does. South will still be able to get to dummy with the king of spades and make either three or four notrump depending on whether or not the defense cashes two diamonds.

A California reader wants to know what a California cue bid is. While neither restricted to or invented in California, it is an advanced bid in which you bid an opponent's suit to ask your partner to bid notrump if he can stop it. It is not recommended except for very well-developed partnerships.

Ms. Gurfein goes it alone Exorcising the ghost of partner past

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Poof. She was gone just like that. One minute Sheryl Gurfein had a partner in her active sportswear company, Tenbridge, and the next she didn't.

That was two weeks ago when the partner, who helped found the company two years ago, succumbed to personal pressures and problems and said, "I'd love to stay but I can't."

Ms. Gurfein is somewhat shaky — like a tightrope walker whose balance pole has been whisked away — but determined to make it on her own.

Well, she's got the heritage and experience to pull it off.

"As a kid growing up on Long Island, I knew I was going to be in business," she says. "My father, who's in the aircraft industry, always believed I should work, so in high school I was a restaurant hostess and a counselor in the school system."

At Syracuse University, where she had the same number of charge plates and cashmere sweaters as the other girls, she alone had to have a summer job.

"It was unusual for parents to do this with a daughter, especially in the '50s," she recalls, "but I believe in teaching my children to work, too. You get a feeling of self worth from a job."

After college, she married a man in the jewelry business, had children, did some freelance wallpaper designing and then, 13 years ago, she and a partner organized a small frozen food business.

"I would make great dinner parties without any hassle and people would say, 'would you do that for me?' So I finally said, 'why not?' We started the Slic-a-derv company and produced frozen hors d'oeuvres and desserts which we sold to Bloomingdale's and the Hilton Hotel chain."

There were different roudades and long rolls of strudel or cream cheese dumplings with various fillings. The hostess broke off what she needed and popped it in the oven.

The business got quite big, she says, but so did the pressure from her husband who found it all exasperating and embarrassing.

"The anxieties I had then I just didn't fit in. I used to think why can't I be poor enough to have to work, or enjoy taking my child to the park enough so that I don't want to work."

When the marriage seemed about to fail, she gave up the business.

The marriage failed anyway and she became a fabric designer for Cohama, among others, which involved another set of frustrations.

"I like to make my own decisions," she says, "but working for a converter, someone who makes fabric, is like working in a 'poppa' business."

"If there's a son or son-in-law or a nephew around, that person is going to be geared for the management post."

Never mind that Sheryl Gurfein had developed successful fabrics for the company, whichever it was; that she was a head stylist with a good salary and people working under her. She was still a woman and she'd go no further up the ladder.

That's when she and Monique, her just-departed partner, formed Tenbridge.

"Monique had a good sales background and had done some designing, so I approached her and we decided to enter the tennis market."

"You see, if you're going to make a name very quickly without much capital, it has to be in an area that's very hot. I'd watched a dowdy tennis dress move out of Gucci incredibly fast, so obviously there was a market for an elegant woman who didn't want to wear tennis shorts, who didn't have a junior figure and who needed tennis clothes."

Tenbridge, named for a spot on the map where their collective finger landed one day, was born, and created a stir with its classic knit tennis dresses, pull-on pants and sweaters, all in small, medium and large, selling for $50 to $100.

"Now, we're moving the line into an active sportswear look because tennis outlets are closing up," she explains. "The fad is over."

But active sportswear is burgeoning, and Tenbridge's line for summer features bright terry rompers, baseball jackets and assorted terry tops, clothes to be worn on court, on bikes, while jogging, perhaps even to work, she says.

The Ghost of Partner Past is hovering about the loft Tenbridge occupies in midtown Manhattan, but Ms. Gurfein is doing her best to exorcise it.

"Monique handled the sales. Well, I've picked up a very fine national sales organization to represent the line and I'll do the designing alone, working with a sketcher. Lots of designers use sketchers, Calvin Klein, Ralph Lauren."

Whatever it takes, this is one business she's not going to abandon. "It's hard out here," she says, "but Tenbridge is going to make it."

Benefits for pregnancy

A woman whose pregnancy prevents her from maintaining a normal workload may claim up to six weeks benefits from the state's disability insurance program, according to Assemblyman Floyd Mori, (D, Pleasanton).

A law which went into effect Jan. 1 allows up to $119 in weekly benefits, depending on the worker's income, for disabled workers covered by the program.

The benefits may be claimed for a maximum of three weeks before and three weeks after the birth of a child. Disabilities arising from pregnancy complications already were covered under the program.

All claimants for pregnancy benefits must meet usual eligibility requirements including proof of regular withholding contributions to the disability insurance fund.

Anyone wishing more information about the benefits may drop by Mori's Valley office at 1811 Santa Rita Road, Suite 228, Pleasanton or call 462-1822.

Sneeze talk

SAN RAMON — Aah-CHOO!

Allergy time again, and don't you wish you knew more about that strange physical quirk that makes some of us sneeze violently at acacias and others break out in hives from strawberries?

A free talk tomorrow morning at the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital will be given on "Coping with Allergies." As part of the center's Health Dialogue series, ear, nose and throat specialist George Stahl, M.D., will discuss causes, diagnosis and control of allergies.

The latest treatment of lung diseases due to allergies will be explained by Barry Westling, C.R.T.T., technical director of Valley Memorial Hospital's respiratory therapy department.

A film will be shown and a question and answer session will conclude the 90-minute program which begins at 10 a.m. in the Family Medical Center, 9260 Alcosta Blvd. on the Dublin-San Ramon border.

Kids need the crisis?

"There is no question that divorce is awful for children," admits Dr. Richard Farson of the Humanistic Psychology Institute in San Francisco, "but in the long run children may develop and become stronger not from happy peaceful experiences but from the calamities that occur — such as divorce."

Says Farson: "It's surviving a crisis that builds character — for both adults and children alike."

DECADE: TO GET REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' WE SPENT TEN YEARS REINVENTING THE CIGARETTE.

In the past everyone knew what a cigarette was supposed to do: taste good. However, tobacco taste has traditionally come from what is known as tobacco 'tar.'

In order for us to reduce this 'tar' while maintaining taste we had to virtually reinvent the cigarette. And that can't be done overnight. In fact it took us ten years to develop a "Total System" capable of delivering truly satisfying taste in a low 'tar' cigarette.

What we mean by "Total System."

A high-filtration low 'tar' cigarette is a complex system of interacting parts.

The tobacco. The filter. And even the paper.

Our objective was to focus on all these parts and arrange them in perfect balance with each other. Only by concentrating on the parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing" plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

We've developed a system called "Flavor Packing" that allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

This is in addition to our special taste blend of fifteen fine tobaccos, including exotic Turkish, full bodied Burley, and Bright, a tobacco known for its smoothness.

The Filter.

Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

The Decade filter is a combination of modern laser technology, plus our own exclusive research design. Simply, we've created a channel within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes. Which means you get taste from first puff to last.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

For Decade we use only high porosity cigarette paper. Ordinary paper inhibits the burn rate, which can diminish the taste and create the need to pull harder when you drag.

With Decade's high porosity paper however, you get an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.

A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack of Decade for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And after one taste we think you'll agree that our last 10 years were well worth the effort.

Only 5 mg.
'tar'.

Regular and Menthol.
